On Trip To Texas

In a specially constructed body mounted on a new Ford truck seven of the American Legion boys started on a 3,000 mile journey to San Antonio, Texas where they will attend the National Legion Convention which will be held there next week.

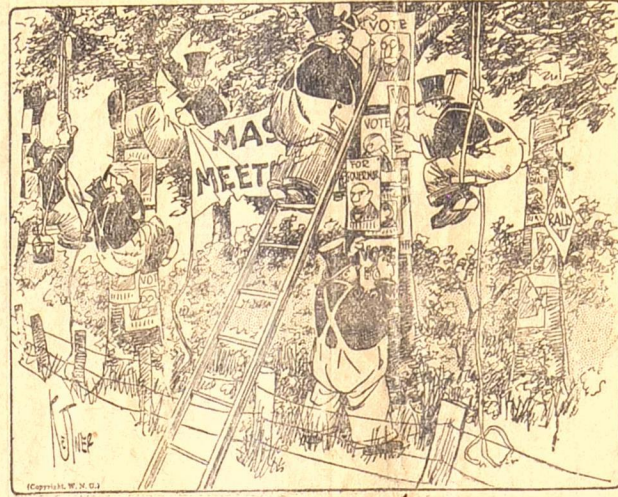

The outfit was carefully arranged to add to their comfort every way possible. They had built a stake frame over which a top, in some respects, similar to the old schooner type of '49' was stretched. Curtains were placed on the sides, these contained windows so they could see out if the weather was such that it would be necessary to close them. However these were rolled up and out of the way at the start. In the front next to the cab there were three compartments in which they carried their "eats" and cooking utensils. A lid closed this and on top of it they carried blankets, trunks and other necessities. Immediately back of this was their living quarters. The equipment in there included five fine upholstered chairs which had been secured from the Bus Company of Lancaster. The chairs were arranged so the occupants sat facing each other, but in that position the backs of the chairs protruded out beyond the side of the frame thus making it difficult if not impossible to lower the curtains in position. They were thinking of correcting this disadvantage by turning the chairs so they would face to the front. Then followed a compartment on the rear end in which was packed, "well it was packed full" trunks, boxes, coats and many incidentals that may be needed. A box arrangement had been built beneath the floor immediately behind the rear fenders in which was carried their cots and some of the blankets. On the running boards were canvas coverings, oil and supplies for the truck which completed the equipment.

After many attempts to get them all together they finally completed their plans and gathered at the truck where they very kindly posed for a picture. (We hope to be able to print this next week)

A number of people gathered to see them off, but it was with a spirit of hilarity they watched in contrast to the feeling that prevailed eleven years ago when these self same boys started for "some where in France." Even so amid all the cheers, at the sound of the motor that was to carry them on their journey there were tears that could not be held in check any longer.

The outfit bore the inscription "Amanda, Ohio to San Antonio, Texas, National Convention, American Legion No. 57" on each side. On the rear was

Calendar of Ohio Birds

OCTOBER
By Prof. Allen C. Conger of the department of zoology, Ohio Wesleyan University

Who can doubt the approach of winter now? Woodlands are turning to flame and gold. The tang of leaf smoke is in the evening air. Long rows of corn shocks stand guard over heaps of Halloween pumpkins. The industrious ant and bee, yes, even the fiddling grasshopper must be aware that the cycle of the year is changing. Surely the birds know it. From the great marshes of the north comes the vanguard of an army of water fowl to run the gauntlet of shot from duckboat and blind. The cries of geese and of ducks may float down from the darkness of the night sky and tell us of the coming of foul weather and our first snow.

As the bird population deserts northern forests the migratory birds of prey travel southward and the migration of hawks is noted. The blue jays, Cooper's and Sharpshinned Hawks are on the move now, seeking their victims among the defenseless species of song birds which are being pressed south by the approach of winter.

The Swallows and the Night Hawk has already gone and now our sky seems bare, for Chimney Swifts are no longer circling and chattering above the tree tops. Their winter home is still an unsolved question. We would hardly give credence to the idea that they fly to the moon or plunge into the mud at the bottom of our lakes yet not so long ago people really proposed such fantastic guesses.

The Phoebe which lingers by our bridges and the Crested Flycatcher hasten to join their other flycatcher relatives in more congenial climes. The blackbirds which began to flock in mid-August have nearly all gone. The Cowbirds have departed and only a few Bonzed Grackles remain, perhaps to winter in southern Ohio.

Just as September is Warbler month, we dedicate October to the Sparrow tribe. We now miss the evening hymn of the sweet voiced Vesper Sparrow. The yellowish Savannah Sparrow and the tiny Grasshopper Sparrow leave their homes in our dry upland fields. From more northern nesting regions we welcome our transient friends, the clear whistling White-throat and the regal White-crowned Sparrow. The brownish Swamp Sparrow and the big handsome Fox Sparrow also stop for a few weeks. Late in the month our little friend Chipping Sparrow and the Field Sparrow of our countryside both leave us. Towhees (Chewinks) become scarce and we look in vain for the bright blue of the Indigo Bunting. The reappearance of Tree Sparrows and Juncos is further evidence of the near approach of winter, for they were among our first acquaintances on a mild day last January.

The Vireo clan, leisurely seekers of insects among the foliage of trees, now seeks more productive hunting grounds where frost will not paint the leaves and then send them tumbling down. The bright Brown Thrasher, which whistled and sang from the treetops and dashed into the thicket of the fence row, has gone to join the Catbird in a visit to their southern cousin, the Mockingbird. The busy little House Wren, which scolded and sang from the nest-box under the garage eaves, bids us adieu until next spring. Roving bands of Golden-crowned and Ruby-

AMANDA WINS COUNTY RACE

A relay team composed of Mack Alexander, Lee Bussert, Creighton Glaze, and Boyd Christy were successful in defeating relay teams from Lancaster, St. Mary's, Pleasantville, Millersport, Carroll, Liberty Union at the Lancaster celebration September 27. It was a great race. No Amanda boy won his lap until the final one when Boyd Christy led the field of runners by at least 50 yards. This is really something to boast about when we stop to think that Lancaster Hi and other large schools of the county competed in the race. Some of the teams were composed of football players who should have been in good condition. The boys from Amanda trained some as a group but most of their training was an individual matter. It is thought by some that Boyd Christy's name will go down with those of Paul Barr, Leo Hedges, and Lee Water as Amanda's cinder track heroes. This event should do much toward creating interest in track events and in sports in general at Amanda. The boys received a beautiful loving cup as a reward for their success. This was presented amid cheers to the school Monday morning by Boyd Christy, captain of the team. Amanda Hi is exceptionally proud of these four boys and we feel that the town should be equally proud.

Stoutsville Schools

The pupils of Clearcreek Hi and grades are very busy working on the fair exhibit. Last year's exhibit was a great success and this year's should be even better. The chief work of the lower grades will be in writing and art. The Junior High grades are working on a great number of projects including an agricultural display. The English and Home Economics department will furnish the greater part of the material for exhibit from the upper four grades. It is expected that the Manual Training students will bring forth some entries. We hope to fill the thirty feet allotment given by the Fair Board and fill it well.

Last Friday September 28th the Saltcreek ball players, both boys and girls, came to Stoutsville to test their skill. The girls game was a decided success for the Stoutsville girls. The Saltcreek girls were good players but the Stoutsville girls set a rapid pace and kept it up until the end of the game. At the end of the fifth inning our girls were victorious with a score of 16 to 8. Next Friday, October 5 we will play Saltcreek there.

Boys Game

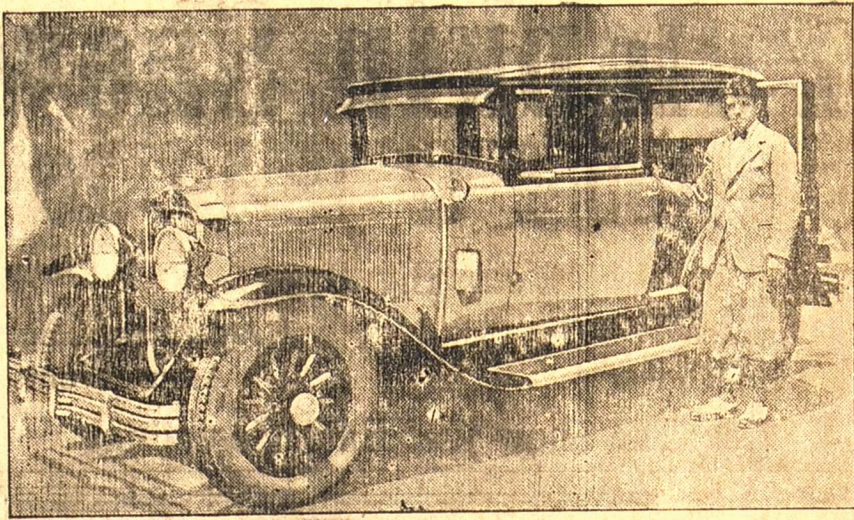

After the girls team had taken over the neighboring girls the boys failed to make the days victory a double header. The Saltcreek boys won with a score of 8 to 3. Although our boys were defeated they took the results with good spirit, as all good sportsmen do. The Saltcreek boys will know of our form next Friday, October 5, when we meet them again at their own school.

There will be one more game of baseball. That is with Sugar Grove on October 26. At this time there will be a general

How to Reduce Live Stock Shipping Losses

The loss suffered by producers, shippers and packers through deaths, cripples and bruised flesh in shipping live stock to market probably reaches $15,000,000 a year, states the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. This sum is equal to about half the value of all the hogs on farms in Ohio, South Dakota, or Kansas, on January 1, 1928, and is nearly as large as the value of all the hogs in Texas on that date. Much of this loss is avoidable. Some progress has been made in reducing it in recent years, but it remains large.

In each of the last several years, railroads paid live stock loss claims aggregating over two million dollars. In many cases, these claims are settled on a 50-50 basis, so that the actual loss would be still larger. In addition, there is a huge aggregate of small losses of one or two head of hogs or lambs, or a crippled steer or cow in a car on which no claim is paid. Records show that the death loss of hogs averages about one head out of every 500 marketed. With nearly 48,000,000 head sold in the last year, the "deadage" would be nearly 100,000 head. Dead live stock brings about 1 to 2 cents a pound and cripples sell at a discount of 2 to 3 cents below animals in sound condition.

The loss through bruised flesh includes about 5,000,000 pounds of pork and 4,000,000 pounds of beef tanked every year, about 5,000,000 pounds of pork and 2,500,000 pounds of beef sold as trimmings at a lower price, and the loss due to reduction of grade on hams and other cuts because of their bruised condition. Prices paid for live stock take into account the average loss the packer can expect through bruising, so that most of it comes out of the farmer's pocket.

Measures to prevent these losses begin at the farm, the Foundation continues. The last feed before loading should be light. Excitement or overexertion in moving to the loading pens should be avoided. Prod poles, pitchforks, clubs and whips should be tabooed, and slap sticks, consisting of a piece of heavy canvas on a short handle, used instead. Arrival at loading pens should be timed to permit resting and cooling off before loading. Cars should be inspected for projecting nails, loose boards, holes, or defective door fastenings. The car should be bedded with sand, sawdust or cinders, with straw or shavings added in winter to prevent hogs from piling up and causing losses through smothering.

In hot weather, hog cars should be thoroughly wet down when loaded and the railroad should drench the hogs at every available point, being careful to avoid throwing water directly upon them after they have become overheated. Four to six hurlap bags of ice which will drip over the hogs should be hung in the car. Overloading should be avoided, especially in hot weather. Small, weak, extremely fat, or inactive or crippled animals are the classes most likely to be lost in shipping and should be penned separately. Vicious or unruly animals should be tied.

Part of the responsibility in the reduction of shipping losses must be borne by the railroads. Having chutes and other equipment at loading points in good condition, pens free from mud and with shelter from sun or storms, facilities for feeding, watering and sprinkling, careful handling of brakes to avoid bumping and piling up of live stock in the cars, prompt movement on the roads and avoidance of delays in delivering cars from the terminal yards to the unloading docks are measures which help to minimize live stock losses.

Corn Borer Compels Changes in Farm Practice

BLOW CORN STALKS AND OTHER PLANT REFUSE COMPLETELY UNDER IN THE SPRING

UTILIZE MORE OF CORN CROP AS SILAGE OR SHREDDED FODDER - CLEAN FEED LOTS OF CORN STALKS IN EARLY SPRING

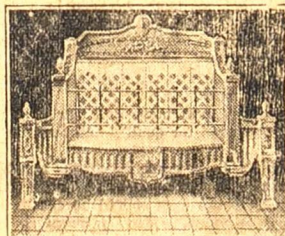

Farmers who begin now to build their lines of defense against the corn borer will be able to slow down the march of this enemy and will be most likely to win the battle with it, observes the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Farm methods will have to be changed eventually, and some of the modifications will require several years for completion, so that it will be a mistake to wait for the borer's actual arrival.

Greatest changes will have to be made in sections now producing a large acreage of corn, where only a small portion of the stalks are fed and where small grain is commonly sown in corn land in the spring without plowing and usually without removing the corn stalks. The least change will be needed in those sections and on those farms where only a moderate acreage is being planted in corn, where most of the corn is cut and siloed or shredded, and where corn land is practically all plowed in preparing for the next crop. These are essential practices in areas infested with the borer.

A gradual change to crop rotations which include only a limited acreage in corn and a maximum acreage of crops not molested by the borer and which permit removing or plowing under all plant refuse will help to control the pest. The selection of crops to displace corn must be made with reference to the adaptation of the soil, the markets, the labor supply, and the live stock program on the individual farm. Sugar beets, alfalfa, soybeans, and small grains are some of the crops which have been substituted for corn in areas where the borer is already present and where the necessity of cleaning up stalks has added $2 to $5 per acre to the cost of growing corn.

Siloing and shredding cause almost complete destruction of borers. A change in the live stock program so as to utilize more of the corn crop in these forms is desirable on many farms, the Foundation continues. Hogging-down can be practiced, although it increases the difficulty of clean-up methods. Corn stalks and cobs in feeding yards and barn lots will have to be cleaned up in early spring after the borer is on the scene.

The plow is the chief weapon of warfare against the borer when it is at close range. Plowing corn stalks completely under is the most feasible way to dispose of them and the simplest, most effective way to prevent severe commercial damage from the borer. They must be completely covered deep enough so that other machinery will not drag them to the surface. Disc harrows and drills will have to replace toothed implements.

"Patent Medicine Politics" Passing

No one industry in this nation is sufficient unto itself, nor would our Country enjoy its present prestige and prosperity without industrial stability.

We have an interlocked system which involves government agriculture, transportation, manufacturing, banking, insurance, power development, mining including oilproduction, business of all kinds, the utilization of many natural resources and public improvements.

It is a mistake to think that any branch of our social or industrial life can be crippled without eventually affecting all business, employment and investment.

If one cuts off even the little finger the whole body feels it and maximum efficiency of the human machine is lessened.

And so it is with business. Hurt the large or small manufacturer, farmer or individual and the effect is reflected in greater or less degree thruout our whole industrial and social structure.

Business today is balanced just as nicely as the human system and tampering with it should be attempted only by experts and then with the greatest caution.

As the people realize this fact more clearly they will look with increasing disfavor upon "patent medicine politics" which experiment with our whole economic structure, just as they now do upon many so-called cure-alls for human ills which for years were peddled on street corners and guaranteed to cure everything from a cold to a tape-worm.

STREET RECALLS
FRENCH NOBLEMAN

New Orleans Financial Center Carondelet's Monument.

New Orleans, La.—Wherever cotton is traded the world over business men are alert to daily development in a New Orleans street which bears the name of a French nobleman famous as a public benefactor.

Carondelet street, where the New Orleans Cotton exchange is located, extends fifty-one squares from Canal street to Robert, west end. The first six blocks from Canal to Poydras street encompass the city's financial district, where the daily turnover runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Midway in these six blocks is the cotton exchange, at Carondelet and Gravier streets. From this building Secretary Henry G. Hester sends out his reports which affect the market wherever the staple is known.

The French nobleman for whom the street is named was christened Francisco Luiz Hestor de Carondelet, Seigneur d' Haine St. Pierre de Nosties. Born in Flanders in 1737, he came to Louisiana in 1791 for a six-year stay. During this time he served as governor. Then he went to Peru from Louisiana to serve as viceroy.

Baron Carondelet recognized the advantages that would accrue to New Orleans from construction of a canal linking the Mississippi river with Lake Pontchartrain. Giving much of his personal fortune and lending his slaves for the work, Baron Carondelet was the dynamic force behind the movement for the canal, although a yellow fever scourge prevented the consummation of his plan. Canal street, now ranked as one of the famous thoroughfares of the world, marks the site of the nobleman's undertaking.

For his many benefactions Louisiana welcomed him as governor. New Orleans paid him tribute with Carondelet street, Baronne Carondelet street, now Baronne street, and Canal street, named for his work.

Salvador Sea Monster Believed Killer Whale

Washington.—The sea monster recently reported as having been discovered on a beach in San Salvador was probably a large porpoise or a killer whale, and no Ichthyosaurus as Central American newspaper accounts would have it. Such is the opinion of Dr. J. W. Gidley, paleontologist of the Smithsonian institution.

There is a superficial resemblance between some of the smaller modern whale-like mammals and the ancient Ichthyosaurs, so that it would not be remarkable if a native hunter, who may never have had a closeup view of a porpoise or a killer whale, should mistake the partially destroyed remains of one of the latter for a survivor of a race of extinct reptiles.

A Christmas Present That Pays Dividends

One service we perform regularly at the holiday season for some of our older customers, is to supply them with good 7% preferred stocks in certificates of 1, 2, 3 or 5 shares, suitably issued, wrapped and prepared for presentation on Christmas day. There is no other Christmas present that affords so much permanent and repeated satisfaction as a good, dividend-paying investment.

The pride and enthusiasm of children crystallize around a share of stock so vividly that the foundation is often laid for a life-long habit of thrift and financial wisdom. Among the older members of the family, a present of this kind has often proved a first step that led on to the accumulation of a competence and a comfortable income in later life.

We will be glad to discuss this plan directly by mail or to arrange a personal interview for you with our local representative.

LIGHTS BEING INSTALLED FROM MATT BUILDING TO CITY HALL

The Ohio Light and Power Company is at work installing electric lights across the street from the Matt building to the corner of the City building to brighten the Christmas season nights and show how much a few electric lights can add to the beauty and comfort of a community. An unselfish enterprise.

CURING MEATS ON THE FARM

In curing pork on the farm, be sure that the hog has been properly slaughtered and then chilled without freezing for at least twenty-four hours. Hams, shoulders and sides make the best smoked meats, and should be trimmed on all three cornered pieces and ragged edges. These small scraps make good sausage but poor ham. Rub the meat well with salt and leave over night. Pack in a clean hardwood barrel with the heavier hams on the bottom the shoulders next and the bacon on top. Good brine can be made from 10 pounds of salt, 2 pounds of sugar or molasses and 4 gallons of water to 100 pounds of meat. It is a good precaution to boil and skim the mixture. Saltpeter may be added to preserve the natural color of the meat but is harmful to the health even if used in small quantities. Brine does not easily freeze but meat cures more rapidly if it does not become too cold. The bacon will cure in from twenty-two to thirty days, while the heavier hams need from forty to sixty days. Freshen cured meat in lukewarm water for six hours. Dry and smoke with hardwood or corncobs for four to seven days. It is safer to let the fire go out of night. Well smoked meat keeps best in a cool, dark, dry well-ventilated place.

KEEP 300 FOWLS

At the average market price, the value of poultry and eggs annually produced in Ohio amounts to $35,000,000. Poultry specialists say that this is a conservative estimate. The industry might be made more profitable, however, by adhering to more efficient practices. For instance, one of the most important things to consider in the poultry business from the view point of profit is that of keeping the proper number of birds in the farm flock. Under ordinary conditions, it is held that 300 fowls represent the best number. It should be large enough to make the producer independent of the local market and yet not be so large as to interfere with more profitable enterprises. Three hundred fowls take little more time or equipment than 150.

INSTITUTES AS POPULAR AS EVER

Increased attendance at farmers' institutes over last year is indicated in the early reports in spite of the bad weather that prevailed at many places. Most of the institutes held during November and during the early part of December are at points situated in the southeastern and northeastern sections of the state.

Good interest is manifested in the rural community life work, one of the new features of this year's activities. Fifteen speakers are devoting their efforts to it. Several communities report stock judging contests, spelling bees and exhibits, of sewing and baked products as feature of their meetings.

As usual, institutes will progress across the state during the season in the general direction of southeast to northwest.

CORN LACKS LIME

Because of the low content of mineral matter, particularly lime, corn should not be fed as the sole concentrate in rations for swine. Bodily weaknesses result from a deficiency of mineral elements when other feeds are not supplied with corn.

In experimental feeding tests conducted by Dr. E. B. Forbes of the Ohio Experiment Station, hogs fed mainly corn had weak bones often resulting in lameness and fractures. Such injuries do not occur with hogs on pasture or those given feeds rich in lime, such as clover, alfalfa, rape, skim milk, and tankage. Bone flour, wood ashes, corncob, charcoal are useful supplements to rations deficient in minerals.

NERVOUS DISEASES

Not always a trembling or shaking condition. Affects the mind as well as the body. Morbid fears. Melancholy. The will power weakened and often entirely lost. Sleeplessness or without recuperation or rest. Impairment of memory. The loss of the disposition to work. A more and painful effort of the will to perform the daily duties. Loss of muscular strength, heart palpitation or dropping a beat. Bad circulation. Cold hands and feet.

Read what Elmer Wood of Upper Sandusky writes: "I take great pleasure in writing of the benefits I have received from your treatment."

The third of May 1915, I was taken suddenly ill with a nervous breakdown. In two weeks I could not stand on my feet without aid. My family doctor consulted with two other physicians but did not find the cause of my trouble. I was so nervous I could hardly stand the noise of wagons passing the house. Was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital, in Columbus, for a time but the tension on my nerves would not relax. I doctored with several of our home physicians including 23 treatments with an Osteopath; found no relief. Then I consulted Dr. Thomen and took his medicine regularly and followed his direction to the letter. I am now working which I did not do for more than one year. I am still taking medicine. Thanks to Doctor Thomen for my recovery.

Will tell some of my symptoms. May help others. Could not stand to be alone. Did not go up town alone for 10 months. I lost all confidence in myself and was so afraid could not even cross the street alone. I am getting stronger every day and will write anyone personally who incloses a stamped envelope.

I think I can cheer up anyone who is dependent and thinks they have nothing to live for.

GOLDEN WEDDING

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scholl, Sr., south of Bremen, was the scene of an occasion long to be remembered by those who were present on Wednesday, December 13th, it being the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Scholl, who, though well up in the seventies are well preserved and enjoy remarkably good health for people of that age. Early in the day the children, grand children and invited guests to the number of about forty arrived.

At the noon hour all present retired to the dining room where all partook of a sumptuous feast fit for a king. After the dinner had been cleared away all assembled in the large parlor where W. A. Scholl, the youngest son, made the "presentation" of the many beautiful presents of which Mr. and Mrs. Scholl were the happy recipients. Mr. Scholl then arose and in a few well chosen words expressed their appreciation and gratitude. He then presented Mrs. Scholl and each of the children and grand children an appropriate gift. Those who enjoyed the happy event were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scholl, Samuel Scholl, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Scholl, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Scholl, Mrs. Frank Larimer, Mrs. Mary Hockman, Misses Jennie and Irene Scholl, Ella and Forest Hockman and Cordelia Kessler, Messrs. W. A. Scholl, Guy and Russell Brown and Charles Poling of Bremen.

Value of Confidence.
The proverb has it that a man's character is no better than his creed; the dwarf is without a creed and longs for none. It is the pushing man who boasts of a creed and convictions along with it. The man who has full confidence in himself seldom comes out at the short end of the horn in the battle of life.

BUT TANLAC SPLENDIDLY AND EFFECTIVELY BROUGHT RELIEF

Stomach trouble, rheumatism and extreme nervousness bordering on nervous prostration were about to cause my collapse as nothing I had taken seems to do me a particular of good until I tried Tanlac. That great preparation drove the pains from my stomach and gave me general relief. My hands were sore and numb, could not use them at times and was in a deplorable condition—had suffered from stomach trouble for twenty five years but Tanlac has done the work to my entire satisfaction and I feel like a different woman and all the praise is due to Tanlac. Thus speaks Mrs. S. M. Hedges of Fair avenue. Tanlac is equally as dependable in the treatment of stomach and liver and kidney trouble and as a tonic and blood and system purifier has no equal.

A Good Judge

Of Christmas presents is Santa Claus. This is particularly true of footwear. Indeed he ought to be for he has been buying footwear for many years. He will buy many pairs in our store this holiday season for the folk who appreciate a gift to their wardrobe.

By the way a pair of shoes or slippers is the most sensible thing to give a person you are fond of. Instead of some gilded knie-knae that gathers dust on the shelf buy them a Christmas order for a pair of shoes.

If you desire to extend the happiness of the Christmas spirit to the feet of the boys and girls put their feet into a pair of our shoes or slippers. A pair of our sturdy school shoes will add to their joy and prove a useful gift.

Don't wait until Saturday, Dec. 23, to do your shopping. Shop early avoid the rush, be given better service.

Don't be uncharitable by doing your Christmas shopping outside of Fairfield county.

MEET DEMANDS OF DAIRYMEN

High prices of dairy feeds and the present price of market milk have stimulated a close study of the most efficient dairy practices. So keen has been the interest that an insistent demand has been made upon the Ohio State University College of Agriculture to provide instruction on the farm to the hundreds of dairy farmers and others directly interested. In an effort to offer general instruction to dairying, the Agricultural College Extension Service has just issued the first lessons of a correspondence course on that subject. Enrollment is without cost to residents of Ohio. Applications may be made to J. E. McClintock, Supervisor of Correspondence Courses, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

WHEN YOU HAVE A COLD

It is when you have a severe cold that you appreciate the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. Frank Crocker, Pana, Ill., writes: "Our five year old son Paul caught a severe cold last winter that settled on his lungs and he had terrible coughing spells. We were greatly worried about him as the medicine we gave him did not help him in the last. A neighbor spoke so highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that I got a bottle of it. The first dose benefited him so much that I continued giving it to him until he was cured. For sale by all dealers Dec 2, 9, 16, 23, 30.
